TEN ESSENTIAL PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICES

All Local Health Departments (LHD's), as governmental entities, derive their authority and responsibility from the state and local laws that govern them. Accordingly, all LHD's exist for the common good and are responsible for demonstrating strong leadership in the promotion of social, economic and environmental conditions that improve health and well-being and prevent illness, disease and injury. However in the absence of specific consistent standards regarding how LHD's fulfill this responsibility; the degree to which the public's health is protected and improved varies widely from community to community.

- ◆ Monitor health status to identify community health problems.
- ◆ Diagnose and investigate identified health problems and health hazards in the community.
- ◆ Inform, educate, and empower people about health issues.
- ◆ Mobilize community partnerships to identify and solve health problems.
- ◆ Develop policies and plans that support individual and community health efforts.
- ◆ Enforce laws and regulations that protect and ensure safety.
- ◆ Link people to needed personal health services and ensure the provision of health care when otherwise unavailable.
- ◆ Ensure a competent public health and personal health care workforce.
- ◆ Assess effectiveness, accessibility and quality of personal and population-based health services.
- ◆ Research for new insights and innovative solutions to health problems.
